Gangsters' Guns Shoot Down Police and Citizens in Big Organized Bank Raid

SYNOPSIS
The teller of this story—a private detective—feels "there's more trouble in the air" when Benzo, a tipster-sneaky, says that dead men after Benzo had tipped off the sleuth about "a caper" being "rigged" for the Seaman's National bank. Earlier that evening, the detective spotted several sinister revolvers from various parts of the United States in San Francisco. He doubts the value of Benzo's secret information, but . . .

CHAPTER II

In the morning I spent an hour in the agency file-room, digging through the gallery and records. We didn't have anything on Red O'Leary, Denno Burke, Ramsey Regan, Sylvia Vout, and only some guesses on Paddy and Mrs. Zor were there. Any upon jobs definitely chalked against Angel Grace, Bluepoint, Vance, Sherry Holmes and Happy Jim Hecker, but their photos were there. At ten o'clock, bank opening time—I set out for the Seaman's National, carrying these photos and Benzo's tip.

The Continental Detective Agency's San Francisco office is located in a Market street office building. The Seaman's National bank occupies the ground floor of a tall gray building in Montgomery street, San Francisco's financial center. Ordinarily, since I don't like even seven blocks of unnecessary walking, I don't take a street car. But there was some sort of traffic jam on Market street, so I set out foot, turning off along Grant avenue.

A few blocks of walking and I began to see that something was wrong with the part of town I was heading for. Noises for one thing—roaring, rattling, explosive noises. At Butler street a man passed me, holding his face with both hands and groaning as he tried to push a dislocated jaw back in place. His check was scraped red.

I went down Butler street. Text

Just 400 Letters and Gary Cooper

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service.)

Hollywood, Oct. 24—It took her nearly 400 letters to do it, but Evelyn D. Kelly finally succeeded today in meeting her screen idol, Gary Cooper.

What studio attaché claim to be a record in fan correspondence began in 1928 when a 15-year-old girl in Santa Cruz began writing a weekly letter to the Paramount set.

Grown up now and a graduate of the University of California, she happened to be in Hollywood today and decided to call upon the star. With the optimism of the novice, she simply presented herself at the studio and asked for Gary.

But luck was with her. By mere chance, the star's mother, Mrs. Frank Cooper, happened to be passing through the lobby. Along with Gary, she had corresponded with the girl, and recognized the name.

And so the forbidden gates were opened. Mrs. Cooper took the excited fan to the "Lives of a Menzies"

PROGRAM'S DIFFERENT TONIGHT, GRAHAM!

By Universal Service

New York, Oct. 24—Ed Wynn, stage and radio comedian, has been sued for $115,000 by Mrs. Ruth Greenberg and her husband, Samuel, for alleged services rendered in behalf of him and his wife, Mrs. Wynn.

Mrs. Greenberg, who was employed to care for Mrs. Wynn, entered a general denial of the allegations and said Ed Wynn he would fight the case "if it ever comes to court." He added:

"They think I have a lot of money and they want some. Greenberg is my own uncle. There is not a word of truth in their allegations."

Mrs. Greenberg alleged she was induced by Wynn to remain on the job, adding that he promised to "compensate her liberally." Mrs. Greenberg charged that Mrs. Wynn, daughter of the late Frank Keenan, noted actor, had struck her several times, inflicting permanent injuries.

INSISTS MOTHER, GIRL SILENT

DE ONATE SAYS BLOOD PURE

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, Oct. 24—

Around the tousel head of Ellen Wilson McAdoo, 19-year-old debutante daughter of Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, there raged today a verbal storm concerning whether the girl would have the legal right to marry the man she loves—Rafael Lopez De Onate, 38-year-old native of the Philippine Islands.

In Riverside, California, where the girl filed a notice of intention to wed, County Clerk D. G. Clayton stated no marriage license would be issued Miss McAdoo and De Onate until the latter proved he was of the Caucasian race.

In his sworn statement, at the time of filing a notice of intention to wed, De Onate tersely identified himself as "a native of the Philippine Islands," the county clerk declared.

He added:

"This admission throws some question upon his ancestry. When De Onate and Miss McAdoo return to my office on Friday—the end of the three-day limit as they said they would—I shall question De Onate at length concerning his parentage before issuing a marriage license."

Speaks for Ellen

Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, youngest daughter of the late President Woodrow Wilson and mother of Miss McAdoo, did the talking for her daughter.

"There are no plans for any marriage at the present time," she said. "I am only saying there are no marriage plans right now."

Although Mrs. McAdoo declared as knew of her daughter's plans to be married, she would not state whether she approved of the union.

"I understand Mr. De Onate is of Spanish descent," she said. "The men about whom the controversy was raging—De Onate—remained at his home in Hollywood."

"I can't say that I am only saying there are no marriage plans right now."

He added:

"This admission throws some question upon his ancestry. When De Onate and Miss McAdoo return to my office on Friday—the end of the three-day limit as they said they would—I shall question De Onate at length concerning his parentage before issuing a marriage license."

CURLEY FIGHT

By FRANK REILLY

Ferdinand Pecora of the Federal Reserve Board, one of President Roosevelt's closest friends, will come to Boston on November 3 to urge the election of James M. Curley as the next governor of Massachusetts.

Decision to send Pecora here as principal speaker at the Curley victory rally in Boston Garden on that evening was reached today by Democratic national officials. An attendance of 30,000 is expected.

Curley is reported as 20 to 1 that he will win by a majority of 100,000; 5 to 2 that his plurality will be 150,000, and even money that he will be victorious by a margin of 200,000 votes.

Today he is scheduled to speak in Middlebury, Franklin, Blackstone, Rockdale, Grafton, Milbury, Worcester, Uxbridge, Milford, and Framingham.

Plans have been completed for the huge Curley rally to be held in Lowell Saturday night. Mr. Curley today forwarded invitations to 5000 Republicans of that city and surrounding communities to attend the affair.

Tomorrow evening he is to be guest of honor at a banquet of members of the Jefferson League in Hotel Edison, Lynn. Later he will speak in Oak Grove Hall, that city, in Peabody City Hall and in Salem Armory.

The Washington SIDESHOW

By GEORGE R. BROWN

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service) Washington, Oct. 24—Gentlemen of the American Bankers' Association have brought to town an independence of mind and a spirit of criticism that might have prevented a good many weird economic experiments if they had been manifested a year earlier.

They are considerably more afraid of the next Congress than the next occupant of the White House. They definitely believe that the President has moved the center of gravity of the government towards the right, and that it is to him they must look for leadership against the congressional puzzle now being prepared for November delivery by the voters of the country. Every time they think of that Congress they shiver. Yet it hasn't been elected yet, and it is as much of an unknown quantity as the sex of an unborn child.

They try with the President in his hostility to the immediate payment of the bonus. In their collective mind the bonus is part of a chain something like this: "Dole, veteran's bonus, 35-hour week, inflation-bonus for the C. C. C." You would be surprised to find how much apprehension there is lest the C. C. C. boys organize for "adjusted compensation." They have had more service now than many of the veterans of the World War. Anyhow, strange as it may seem, they are all in the same boat. They want to head off the bonus is to cut down the C. C. C.

President Bob Hanks of Washington Bank of Washington-Salem, D. C., the belted cat of the bankers, who made a pretty sharp reply in his speech at the opening session of the annual convention to Roosevelt's recent firebrand chat, and sounded a new note of courage and independence, is the head of the big Reynolds Tobacco Company Bank. He is a close friend of S. Clay Williams, the new head of the NRA.

Vice President Nevins of the Riggs Bank was telling Edwin R. Rooney, vice president of the First National Bank of Washington, that he had one of the Hub's most brilliant ideas. It was to create a new kind of cigarette. It was the quiet old mirror which hung on an historic evening in the printing proposed by cash bonus advocates, was adopted by a vote of 24 to 18. It then was given a unanimous vote, and the committee decided on minority report, would be filed with the convention.

It was approved after the committee first rejected, by a vote of 30 to 11, a direct "demand" for immediate cash payment of the bonus.

The President's message was sent to National Commander Edward A. Hayes, who read it to the convention. There was no applause.

The President's message follows: "My dear Commander Hayes: 'I was delighted to receive your very cordial invitation to attend and address the sixteenth national convention of the American Legion to be held at Miami, commencing October 25. I will recall meeting with the American Legion last year in Chicago when you were elected to your present high office. My reception there always will be keenly appreciated.'

"It is with sincere regret, therefore, that this year I find it will be impossible to join with the American Legion at Miami. Other commitments and pressure of public business preclude the acceptance of your invitation.

"My failure to be there, however, will in no sense lessen my interest in your proceedings. The American Legion is a significant American organization, patriotic in its concepts and strong in its influence. Complied of veterans of the World War and perpetuating the memory of those who have passed on, you can well stand as a beacon to guide your country's further national security.

"While I realize your interests are in many directions, our national welfare is paramount. I urge you to carry such a spirit into your convention. Your country expects this of you and I am confident it will not be disappointed.

"I wish your convention every success.

"Very sincerely yours, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Let's find out why
Turkish tobacco is so important to a good cigarette

On the sunny slopes of Smyrna... in the fertile fields of Macedonia... along the shores of the Black Sea... grows a kind of tobacco that is different from any other tobacco in the world.

THESE Turkish tobaccos are the only tobaccos of foreign cultivation that are used to any great extent in making American cigarettes.

Turkish tobaccos are famous for their spicy aroma, and a blend of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco with our own home-grown tobaccos is better than any one kind used alone.

In Chesterfield we balance mild, ripe tobaccos grown in this country with just the right amounts of the right kinds of Turkish.

It is by blending and cross-blending these different tobaccos that we make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Turkish tobacco hung in the open air to be cured.

GERMANY SHOPS THE FOOD, SAYS KNICKERBOCKER

Germany has sacrificed liberty under the Nazi regime and received in exchange flour weighted with poison meal and lightened with heavy deaerators made of whole oil, clothing mixed of wool and chemical fibre.

H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, tells the details of the "Greats" (substitute) ERA, which Naziism has ushered into Germany in the following third article of his new series, "Democracy Versus Dictatorship."

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

Berlin, Oct. 24.—Germany gave up liberty for the sake of a number of other things she considered better than liberty, and one of the most important of them was economic security. National Socialism, she was told, would give this country a higher standard of living.

But what has the common citizen of Germany got out of national socialism after 19 months of it? What has the workman, first of all in his capacity as a common citizen, got out of it? Have the promises of economic security been realized?

The common citizen, in the second winter of the third Reich has won the right to eat bread of four weighted with potato meal and lightened with bran.

H. R. Knickerbocker
He has won the right to spread this bread with deaerators made of whole oil, "neutral" and what not.

He has won the right to wear shoddy clothing mixed of wool and chemical fibre.

His bicycle may now be equipped only with tires of reclaimed rubber, and his automobile, if he has one, may be fueled only with gasoline mixed with a substitute.

MATERIALS SCARCITY
His spare time will be partially devoted to going about picking up scraps of leather, bits of metal and wigs of wool for the sake of adding a few pounds of raw materials to Germany's dwindling supplies.

Housewives are advised not to throw away carefully made ends of thread, for it is pointed out that if each of Germany's 35,000,000 households threw away only one-tenth of an ounce of thread a year, this would make an annual total of five tons.

This is the economic security that has resulted after 19 months of the Nazi dictatorship.

How much worse Germany will suffer than the outside world is indicated by her position in regard to foreign trade. During the first three years, German foreign trade has declined precipitously since the Nazi regime, and that during a period when world trade was beginning to pick up.

The four factors are, first, the continued increase of restrictions against imports in most countries throughout the world; second, the overvalued Reichsmark; third, the Jewish-Catholic-Liberal boycott against German goods; and fourth, the rise in the price of raw materials Germany has to import for her export industries.

It is probable that the importance

Does Crosswords, Awaiting 'Third Degree'

Under arrest, charged with taking part in a $2500 "E.P." robbery, alleged bandit Leo T. Hayes, 21, of Brookline, occupies his mind with a crossword puzzle while awaiting questioning at police headquarters. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

GIRL GIVES CLUE IN EL HOLDUP

Love, lots of nickels and dimes and a 15-year-old girl who talked out of turn proved the ending of Leo T. Hayes and may solve the long-sought mystery of the Dudley street, Roxbury, elevated holdup, police said today.

Hayes, arrested on suspicion of complicity in that holdup, told authorities he got $2500 for his part in the crime and said he was willing to "take the rap," police announced.

He is 21 and has been living in a Warren street downtown hotel. Police say his family lives in Thomas street, Brookline.

Arrested with Hayes was Guyana Phillips, 20, of Sheridan street, Jamaica Plain. He maintained his innocence of the crime, although police continued to hold him.

Arguments for Irving and Merton Milten, convicted Needham bank robbers and murderers, opened before the U. S. Circuit Court of appeals today in a crowded courtroom.

Counsel for the brothers seek a reversal of a district court decision of last April, in which writs of habeas corpus for removal of their trial to federal court were denied.

Arguments on the appeal were turned over by Attorney George Stanley Harvey, senior Milten counsel, to Attorney Meyer Goldman, who handled the federal court plea which Harvey appeared at the Dedham trial in April.

District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing, who prosecuted the Miltons and Alvin Karpis, was in court with Attorney Charles B. Rugg, special assistant attorney general, appointed to aid him. Sheriff Samuel H. Cohen, into whose care the Miltons and Karpis were given at Dedham jail, was formally named defendant in today's action.

6 Ex-Governors in Plea for Bridges

Concord, N. H., Oct. 24 (AP)—Six Republican former Governors of New Hampshire joined with Governor John G. Winant today in a plea for the election of H. Styles Bridges of Concord as Governor in November. The action was described by observers as without precedent, signing the endorsement of "Bridges" candidacy with Charles W. Tobey, Hiram H. Spaulding, Albert O. Brown, Henry W. Keyes, Holland H. Spaulding, Robert W. Bass.

The name of John H. Bartlett, Portsmouth, the only other living former Republican Governor, is not on the list.

Walter Winchell, whose intellectual pabulum is exclusive information from the cradle to the grave, and even before the cradle, writes that inside information, which to his sorrow he cannot print, shows him that Hauptmann really is guilty of the Lindbergh kidnapping.

The suggestion made here that Hauptmann's friend Fisch, who went to Germany and died there, might have left the ransom money with Hauptmann, is outside the realm of probability, according to Mr. Winchell.

Winchell, young and a good reporter, is probably right. But before executing Hauptmann, somebody should be SURE that he is guilty.

MANIAC FLEES HOSPITAL

Morris Heller, formerly of Clark avenue, Chelsea, escaped from Denver State hospital today, sending police on a manhunt because of his reputation as a dangerous mental case.

State police on motorcycles were hurried to Newburyport Turnpike soon after authorities reported Heller's disappearance.

Doctors said Heller escaped by picking the lock of his cell.

The effect on the pickpocket was amusing and instantaneous. His face turned white, he withdrew his hand, suddenly, violently. The owner of the gun burst out laughing.

The effect of that gun on that pickpocket was exactly the same. As the effect on foreign nations would be if they came prowling around here and found Uncle Sam in possession of a submarine fleet big enough to sink the commercial navies of the world and a fighting air fleet big enough to destroy the cities of any foolish attacking nation.

Such fleets of submarines and airplanes would have a remarkable protective effect IF Uncle Sam possessed them. Unfortunately, he is an unprotected infant, convinced that his eight billion dollar lump of gold in Washington and big bank deposits are all the protection he needs.

Washington, where American bankers are gathered to discuss worries and sorrows, announces that the banks have "been assured of President Roosevelt's friendly help."

How are the mighty fallen! There was a time when President's were assured of the bankers' friendly help, and the assurance made the President very happy.

PICCARD'S PET TURTLE SAFE AFTER HOP

By Associated Press
Cádiz, O., Oct. 24.—The skyrider Piccards and Lilly the Turtle are back on earth.

The first flight by balloon into the stratosphere—a rare atmosphere hitherto the earth where man needs a mechanical oxygen supply—in which a woman has participated ended without ceremony in a woods near here late yesterday. Prof. and Mrs. Jean Piccard just plumped to the ground and it was over.

With them was Lilly, the tiny turtle mascot, named Pleur de Lys at birth.

An eight-hour quest for information about the cosmic ray by aid of delicate instruments carried the naturalized Swiss scientist and brother of another stratospherist, Auguste Piccard, from the Ford airport at Dearborn, Mich., across Lake Erie and on to the gently rolling terrain of Eastern Ohio.

The profit in the flight, in which the Piccards did not try for any great altitude, will lie in what they contributed to the knowledge of the cosmic ray. Dr. W. F. G. Swann, Franklin Institute ray expert at Swarthmore, Pa., said last night through the Piccards' efforts. The instruments the huge balloon, and its fragile metal gondola carried will be sent here for examination.

The Piccards reached a probable height of more than ten miles—the exact height awaits calibration of their barograph at Washington—cruised serenely above a dense blanket of clouds for hours while bright sunlight shined from their craft, and came down four and a half miles southwest of here on the John Fulton farm.

Hylan Loses Tilt Over Governorship

Amsterdam, N. Y., Oct. 24 (APS).—Former Mayor John F. Hylan today lost a round in his fight to get his name on the ballot as the Recovery Party's candidate for governor. Supreme Court Justice Heffernan denied an application of Harry Gordon, counsel for Hylan, for a writ to prohibit Supreme Court Justice Schenck in Albany from trying the case until an appeal was made to the higher courts in a question of Schenck's jurisdiction.

The good fortune which brought the sky-riding Piccards back safe to earth was not shared by their stratosphere balloon. Here the big gas bag hangs, torn and bedraggled, as it landed in woods near Cádiz, Ohio. It was almost ripped to shreds, but its passengers and the instruments carried in its metal gondola escaped injury. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

Piccards, Old Glory, Back Safe From Skies; But Stratosphere Balloon Is Casualty

After successfully braving the perils of the earth's upper atmosphere, Prof. Jean Piccard and his wife, Mrs. Jeanette Piccard, are now safe on solid ground again. Here they are shown as they appeared just after their landing in woods not far from Cádiz, Ohio. Their instruments were uninjured by the descent.

The stratosphere explorers are displaying the American flag they carried to the sky frontier. With them are William Heford and Carl Leight, Cádiz residents who assisted the Piccards from the balloon. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

MRS. PICCARD TELLS FEELINGS TEN MILES IN AIR

By JEANNETTE PICCARD
(As Told to International News Service)

Cádiz, O., Oct. 24.—Was I afraid when the little gondola containing my husband and me was ten miles above the ground?

No, not afraid, but anxious, maybe, anxious because of the terribly low ceiling during the nearly eight hours we were in the air.

When we finally dropped through the mist, it was a surprise to find ourselves over a small forest in southern Ohio. But no lesser a surprise than if we found ourselves over the Atlantic Ocean or Lake St. Clair.

SAW ONLY VOID

We could see nothing all the time we were up but clouds and had no idea of where we were flying.

The men in the radio contact car which attempted to follow the flight had more idea than we where we were. Away up there one can't tell in which direction he is drifting or at what speed.

We were up through the mist into the golden pink above the clouds over my light sweater. The sky becomes more colorless the farther up one goes. It loses its beautiful shades and the clouds are white and gray only.

There was little sensation in the flight. Of course, it was exciting to shoot from the fog suddenly into the beautiful sunlight and just as suddenly back into the fog again.

The trip was a success, only I am not proud of my landing. It was too bad to tear the balloon but I am glad the gondola was not hurt. When we started to land there just was no stopping; the ship going into the trees. And I am happy no damage was done except to the bag.

LITTLE TIME TO EAT

We worked hard all the time we were aloft with the instruments and didn't have much time to talk or to eat. The instruments had to have attention and that occupied our thoughts mostly.

How successful the research into the cosmic ray will be will take weeks to determine in the laboratories. I am pleased and proud that none of the instruments was damaged in the landing.

Would I do it all over again? Certainly.

And would I take another flight? Certainly again, if I had the chance.

Former Soldier Is Accused of Theft

Lawrence, Oct. 24.—A former soldier, who carried his knowledge of guns into civilian life, was to be charged with armed robbery in district court here today, according to police.

Leo J. Langton, 37, formerly of Boston, was arrested charged with having robbed at gun point the manager of the Worcester Hat store at 631 Essex street.

Police said, he held up Ronald G. Jones, a 32 automobile and rifled the cash drawer of nearly $25.

Tugwell Sees End of Cuthroat Trade

Rome, Oct. 24 (AP).—A prediction that "cuthroat" international trade will be eliminated, as "cuthroat" domestic trade is being abolished, was made today by Rexford G. Tugwell, United States Under-Secretary of Agriculture. In his address to the International Institute of Agriculture, in the presence of leading agricultural economists, Tugwell did not use the term "planned economy," although he did advocate a change in the Institute to support such a system.

POLANDO LOST IN AIR RACE

By International News Service

Melbourne, Oct. 24.—Two swift and luxurious airplanes manufactured in the United States, won second and third places in the London-to-Melbourne derby today, as anxiety began to develop concerning the safety of the American team of John Wright and John Polando. Polando hails from Lynn, Mass.

Far behind the leaders, Wright and Polando left Bagdad in the Lambouf monocoques at 5:10 a. m. (E.S.T.), yesterday, and more than 24 hours later no word had been heard of them.

The routes they planned to follow from Bagdad would take them over the mountains and deserts of Persia, inhabited only by semi-civilized tribes, and a forced landing anywhere on the course might keep them out of touch with the world for many hours.

The two American-built planes, which roared into Melbourne today, competed in a thrilling finish, with only 2 hours and 44 minutes separating them.

The Dutch team, K. D. Parmelee and J. J. Moll, came in second in the race with Roscoe Turner and Clyde Gage, an American Boeing transport plane, third.

The Dutch-manned Douglas D. C. 2, powered with Melrose-built Wright cyclone motors, flashed across the finish line here at 10:52 a. m. (7:52 p. m. Tuesday, E. S. T.), nine seconds to Britain's winners, C. W. A. Scott and T. Campbell Black.

Turner and Pangborn took the $2000 third place money when they brought their plane across the finish line at 1 p. m. (10:36 p. m. Tuesday, E.S.T.). The American flyers had encountered bad luck throughout their flight across Australia, owing to bad weather that made their passage over the continent's mountains and deserts extremely hazardous.

Their time for the 11,000-mile journey was 93 hours and six minutes, two hours and 44 minutes slower than that of the Dutchmen.

Ex-Cop Fined for Tippy Driving

Joseph F. Burns, a former Braintree police officer whose automobile ran down and seriously injured Muriel Benjamin of Union street, Braintree, two weeks ago, was found guilty of drunken operating in Quincy court today. He was fined $105.

Burns tendered his resignation as a police officer to town officials a week ago.

ADMIRAL BYRD TALK FROM LITTLE AMERICAN AIR

In another of those entrancing two-way broadcasts to Little America—broadcasts that reveal the marvel that radio is—Admiral Richard E. Byrd, chief of the expedition, will speak over the 10,000-mile circuit and make known to leading American scientists plans for future explorations into the icy wastelands of that snow-bound country.

The program will be ethered locally over WNAZ air channels from 10:00 to 10:30 p. m. this evening. It is expected that a dog sledge group will leave the base just before the broadcast and take to the snow trails to lay down food caches. Admiral Byrd will explain the preparation of sleds, which must be made before the team is allowed to leave for the hazardous trip.

Maxwell Anderson's Pulitzer Prize, "Saturday's Children," just been chosen by Mary Pickford to be the third production of her new Stock Company tonight (WEEI) at 8:00 o'clock. The Queen of the Air will play the leading role of the girl who gives up her own life for her more popular sister.

The play is a sympathetic human story of the happiness and sorrow of a typical American family, and takes its title and theme from the old nursery rhyme which predicts for Saturday's children a life of love and disappointment.

Alex Grey will again "pitch-hit" for Everett Marshall on tonight's presentation of the "Broadway Varieties" half-hour on WNAZ airwaves from 8:30 to 9. Alex will sing duets with Elizabeth Lennox, and be heard in solo supported by a mixed chorus and the music of Victor Arden's orchestra.

'beacon hill' By Betty Alden

THIS YEAR'S BOUQUET OF DEBUTANTES is a sublime example of energy... judged by the simply endless sea line at Miss Janet Scudder's debut last evening at the Ritz. There must have been 10 Favored Ones to every Fair Thing which made the evening just perfect for the girls. It was one of the largest and most successful affairs of the season...

MISS LUCIE HOPKINS

The beautiful ballroom and lounge were a bower of autumn blooms... Mrs. Howard Knight and her daughter, Miss Scudder, with Miss Catherine Chappell received until midnight against a tapestry of flowers and autumn leaves. The pretty debutante was frocked in sea green and gold lame with a corsage of bronze orchids... Mrs. Knight was tall, slender and lovely in hyacinth blue crepe with fuchsia velvet girdle and slippers. In scarlet velvet and gardenias, Miss Chappell's dark beauty was set in sharp relief.

Cloth of Gold

THERE WERE CROWDS of Harvard business school men present, friends of the popular Frances Scudder, who was presented two seasons ago. We feel sure that Miss Janet will inherit her sister's popularity.

In the huge throng we glimpsed Miss Barbara Cushing in cloth of gold, eagerly anticipating her own presentation which takes place Friday evening at the Ritz, another brilliant ball to go down in 1934 history... Miss Alice Spading, a deviously beautiful debutante (adjective supplied by her dancing partner and warmly seconded by us), in sapphire blue, who will also be presented soon at a house dance... Miss Peggy Hardwick in a smart red and black creation...

Miss Lucie Hopkins striking in bright red crepe... and in the same cheery shade lovely Nancy Faxon wore a lei of velvet flowers around her shoulders... Peggy Macomber chose the seasonal orange and yellow like the spirit of Halloween... Mary Fuller was in her favorite sheer black, a popular shade with her sister, Miss Lydia, when she came out...

Polly Wardwell was always dancing we noted... and Kathleen Keville was adorable in pale pink and sapphire blue... pale green trimmed with noble adorned the beautiful Martha Bird, whose debut luncheon recently at The Country Club was one of the crushes of the season...

Gown of Classical White Satin
RUTH EDMANDS, TALL, STATUESQUE and we think one of the season's most distingue girls, was in the classical white satin and seemed to be always in great demand on the dance floor... Mary Benton in roseluck pink satin in an off-shodder effect was incredibly chic; she confided to us she aspired to become an author—she might start with last evening.

In turquoise blue moire with silver grid, a perfect love of a gown on a perfectly lovely girl, was Miss Harriet Sturgis—if she stopped swaying to the sweet strains of the orchestra once we did not see her. At her best in ivory lace made with hundreds of tiny ruffles was Molly Bowditch—her Favored One from Milton thought so, we imagine. She is a very little girl of the cuddly type, a dear!

Completely surrounded by swains was Evelyn Hansen in dark blue taffeta en bouffant with a cluster of deep red roses in the corsage. As we mentioned before, shoulder corsages are out—the debutantes wear their flowers on the front of their bodices this season. Helen Porter was attractive in pale blue which offset her fluffy blonde tresses and Natalie North was a perfect foil with her black bangs in bright light blue lace...

Catherine Walsh in Greenish-Blue Taffeta
THERE WERE MANY of Mrs. Knight's friends among the young folks... we glimpsed her attractive sister, Mrs. George Clymer in sheer Chantilly lace... Mrs. Merrill Griawell in simply cut black crepe... Mr. and Mrs. Griswold are sailing this week for a six weeks' cruise to South America... Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Jackson, parents of the dark-eyed Deborah Jackson whose marriage took place this season before her presentation... Mrs. Thomas Knowlton Chaffee of Providence, in a lovely green and gold metal lace... Charlotte Reed was in the sea-green of this moment...

Catherine Walsh was a picture in greenish-blue taffeta with a cluster of red and yellow roses in her corsage and Barbara McKinnock also chose the popular green for her evening frills...

A delicious supper was served at midnight... a quartette of Mexican serenaders sang in the shadows of the Peacock Room as the youngsters sat about with healthy appetites devouring mushroom patties, etc., and sipping a delicious wine cup. They were still dancing to the melodious strains of Jack Marchand's eighteen piece (in honor of the birthday) orchestra when we slipped away at two a.m.

We heard that Mrs. Francis Gleason (Mary McElwain) is recovering from her operation for appendicitis in New York. Mr. and Mrs. McElwain are in New York to be near her.

The W. H. Kirkbrides are to be on Fifth Avenue, New York, this winter and will not open their apartment at 6 Arlington street this season.

Molly Weed is spending the winter in Munich studying music. Miss Weed came out last winter...

A NEW GOLD RUSH

A NEW GOLD RUSH is sweeping the country, not in Canyons or Gulches, but in old Bureau Drawers. When President Roosevelt, with a stroke of his pen, increased the price of gold, it started millions of people searching in old drawers, old bureaus, chests and closets for gold, old gold (that is bits of out of date jewelry, dental gold and old watches). Today these are worth more than they have been for two generations.

A DOLLAR WAVE is it worth a penny to save it?

DANDERINE insures your hair for a penny a day.

When you pay a dollar for a wave, Danderine will help you keep it. It isn't a sticky dressing, or an oily tonic, and it doesn't leave any telltale odor. Its fresh fragrance is gone quickly after applying, but not that marvelous effect of freshness and cleanliness! When you've washed your hair, a little Danderine will keep it from going better-skinner.

Use a dash of Danderine every day—every time you comb your hair—to be sure of your hair all day long! To know it's clean, and looks clean. To know it will stay as you arranged it. And to know that it's free from dandruff.

That's what moistening your comb with a few drops of Danderine will do. And what an amount of dry-combing will ever do. Nearly all hair needs the help that Danderine gives it. A dash of Danderine morning and night makes an amazing difference in the way any hair looks all the time! It doesn't affect the color.

With all the care you give your hair, it's a pity to omit this last touch that means so much. It's no trouble! Yet you can hardly let anything so mild and pleasant as Danderine could bring such a change in the condition and appearance of your hair and scalp. Just try it. You can buy Danderine at any drugstore for only thirty-five cents; larger sizes, 60c and $1.00.

Every once in a while the First Association of Merchant Tailors begins to fume and fret and howl over about the consequences of the existence of the modern dressmaker.

What is worse is that this anxiety in Buckingham Palace has had a direct effect on the commoner.

But the men of the Royal Family have been giving the Honorable the Merchant Tailors a good bit of trouble.

'KINGFISH' IS SANTA GOLD MINE

HUEY IN MAD SPLURGE AIDS THOUSANDS

GIVES $13,500 TO STUDENTS

By Associated Press
Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 24—'Kingfish' Huey P. Long 'gave away' thousands of dollars to Louisiana State University students here yesterday and started a mad "gold rush" which continued today.

The senator, turned Santa Claus, made the fabulous gesture after he said that no student should miss the L. S. U. Vanderbilt football game in Nashville, Tenn., Saturday because of lack of funds.

He had already made several previous donations to the school.

Dogs, like their human masters, are subject to appendicitis. They can't be trusted to inhale an anesthetic obediently, though, so Veterinarian Surgeon G. W. Little of New York is bringing unconquerable to this pup by injecting a pain-killing fluid into an artery of his leg.

Harold Marina is acting as surgical assistant. The operation was performed at a New England veterinarian's clinic at the Osgood Animal Hospital.

FIDO GETS A "SHOT"; NOW OUT COMES APPENDIX

Dogs, like their human masters, are subject to appendicitis. They can't be trusted to inhale an anesthetic obediently, though, so Veterinarian Surgeon G. W. Little of New York is bringing unconquerable to this pup by injecting a pain-killing fluid into an artery of his leg.

Harold Marina is acting as surgical assistant. The operation was performed at a New England veterinarian's clinic at the Osgood Animal Hospital.

O.O. McIntyre DAY BY DAY

New York, Oct. 24—The Bob Brinkworths have gone spitting. Renting their apartment for the winter, they set out in their car for anywhere.

And will not return until the morning. But begin to bud again. Hundreds of artists and actors are away from the city.

The nomads have discovered, too, that in drifting about the customary expenses of New York living are halved.

NO VISITORS FOR HER Mrs. Crabtree Can't Walk by Bishop

Rather than submit to the embarrassment of seeing George W. Bishop, for whom she is alleged to have embezzled $20,000 from the bank for which she works, Mrs. A. Pauline Crabtree has asked the Boston Police to prevent most visitors from seeing her.

This resolution bars her ex-husband, Bishop, from seeing her, as it was reported he intended to do. But it does not exclude her parents, whose she will see whenever they call.

The walk from the women's section of the jail to the visitors' room, takes her past the cell which Bishop, who is alleged to have received a portion of the $20,000, is being held.

Dog's Appendix Removed At Unique Boston Clinic

DOG PUT UNDER ETHER DURING VETERINARIAN DEMONSTRATION

One of the most unusual clinics ever staged in Boston was held under the auspices of the New England Veterinary Medical Association, in convention here at the Hotel Bradford.

The patient: a frisky pup.

The operating table: a small wooden stand.

The hospital: a converted warehouse opposite the Frederick H. Osgood Company Animal Hospital, at Village street.

With all the skill and kindness shown to human patients, the animal was "put under" and prepared for the operation, designed to show the latest improvements in the branch of surgery.

The pup, a victim of canine "appendicitis" was the patient of Dr. George Watson Little, of New York, who was at work in the treatment of patients. Following the painless injection of a "sleeping" fluid, a few whiffs of ether were given to the willing pup.

Dr. Little's assistant, O. B. Schell, of the Angell Animal Hospital, explained that these operations are frequent occurrences in the animal kingdom. Converting on the recovery powers of these patients, he said:

"Within a week or the day after such an operation, the animal will be frisking about as happy as a dog."

row in the movies, was once cast as an actress in a picture.

He brought to this back-story an unusual and interesting character which bracketed him in paragraphs of praise next morning with the star.

By far the most luxurious writing study I ever beheld is in Beekman street, one side entirely shielded in glass and overlooking the East River. The study was plush carpets are dove gray and the walls are a soft pink.

From the ceiling hangs a chandelier in precisely terraced tiers. The study was plush carpets are dove gray and the walls are a soft pink.

TOP RUN IN FIFTH RACE WILSON'S BEST BET AT GOSSETT

Indiantown Goes to Town Rain or Shine

LOOKS BEST IN SECOND

stands out in the list in the mile and non-stayers of the fifth race for tomorrow afternoon.

RED LORE, LEWIS, WILD PIGEON

FIRST RACE—Purse $100, claiming. 1-1st Red Lore, 2-2nd Lewis, 3-3rd Wild Pigeon.

BIRD LORE gets top figure here on the strength of an excellent New York record. The opposition is little more than he has. He is drubbed in the past, LIEBCHIN, a scratch beginner, is favored to be the odds-on post position and should escape early interference. WILD PIGEON is endorsed by a lot of cast and some back of the others.

LIBERTY OAK

SECOND RACE—Purse $100, claiming. 1-1st Liberty Oak, 2-2nd ... 3-3rd ...

BU CLOISTER, a graduate from the ranks of the underlings, has shown enough to handle a field of this sort. A regular on either of his two starts to Cantine Lane is all that is needed to CHAIN duced to the second race to await this spot. On a scratch horse, he is a bit of a favorite.

POLAR FLIGHT, OF GREENE, CIVIL WAR

THIRD RACE—Purse $100, claiming. 1-1st Polar Flight, 2-2nd ... 3-3rd ...

POLAR FLIGHT is the only jockey entered in this race. It is an affair that isn't likely to be contested. On New York, he looks all over the winner. A duplicate of his second to Lippert and his third behind Baldwin and today would not only clinch top honors but also a big purse.

HOKIAU, JAMISON, LIVE ONE

FOURTH RACE—Purse $100, claiming. 1-1st Hokiau, 2-2nd Jamison, 3-3rd Live One.

HOKIAU is a scratch horse and is not almost good evidence to tell in this affair. The event is running on of overall was evident. He is not over his head in this race. Prior to that race, however, he had won a big purse.

LYNN EYE

FIFTH RACE—Purse $100, claiming. 1-1st Lynn Eye, 2-2nd ... 3-3rd ...

LYNN EYE is a scratch horse and is not almost good evidence to tell in this affair. The event is running on of overall was evident. He is not over his head in this race. Prior to that race, however, he had won a big purse.

ROOMS PAL, BIG RED, BLOWN

SIXTH RACE—Purse $100, claiming. 1-1st Rooms Pal, 2-2nd Big Red, 3-3rd Blown.

ROOMS PAL is a scratch horse and is not almost good evidence to tell in this affair. The event is running on of overall was evident. He is not over his head in this race. Prior to that race, however, he had won a big purse.

LAURETTA NASH, OVALETTE

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $100, claiming. 1-1st Lauretta Nash, 2-2nd Ovalette, 3-3rd ...

LAURETTA NASH is a scratch horse and is not almost good evidence to tell in this affair. The event is running on of overall was evident. He is not over his head in this race. Prior to that race, however, he had won a big purse.

AMITY KEYNOTE OF BANKERS' MEETING

By LEWIS HANFY
Professor of Economics New York University

New York, Oct. 24.—At Washington the stage is all set for attempting the great, revolutionary move of the president and the "bankers."

On the one hand, the charges of "excessive" charges are being assembled. Their leaders have held conferences with the President and they are justifying the criticisms of their rank and file. Their own president has sounded a keynote of amity and "cooperation."

On the other hand, the President has become more moderate in expressing his views on the "bankers."

Both sides will, probably say little of the strong position of the banks will know that they are overloaded with government bonds, and will suffer severely if government credit is not supported.

The President, on his part, has seen several of his main policies collapse (notably the NRA), and others are hanging fire. He knows

Both the President and the bankers are concerned about government finances. Plainly, if the government is to keep on spending, it must borrow. That means floating more bonds. The only way to float more bonds is through the banks. In this process, each could Anyhow, it is the public who must eventually pay, and both the lender (the banks) and the borrower (the government) good.

Both the President and the bankers fear the trend toward radicalism. The President is dubious about such new deal bedfellows as Upton Sinclair and Hughie Long. The bankers fear that the new dealers may swing over to the extreme of greenback inflation and put the government in the banking business.

Deal. In fact, as the radicals prepare more radical schemes of monetary and social "reforms," the conservatives try to adjust them-

Two things are happening in this country. One is the growth of real radicalism in politics and a sharper cleavage between radicals and conservatives. The other is a democratization of the millions now receiving "relief" from the government.

The Democratic party is badly split between radicals and conservatives, and cannot hold both together much longer. We are anxious to hear important "Re-

There are more millions on "relief" than there were a year ago, and more of these people are gradually getting to like it and expect it. There is an appalling breakdown in the American spirit of self-help. . . .

Our people are being made willing to become "Forgotten Men."

All this is the background for the President's forthcoming speech. This meeting at Washington is a

If they "get together," the New Dealers will become more conservative, and the Old Dealers more radical. It will be a sort of "stand still agreement," to make the existing public debt look good, valorize it

There will be no open break, but if they don't get together, there

FIGHTERS FIGHT AGAINST BACON

By Bernard J. Doherty

Mill and factory gates have opened on the state will be invaded from now until election day by a flood of wedge of competent organized labor spokesmen after the ship of Gaspard G. Bacon, one of the two Republican candidates for Governor, opposed by former Mayor Curley.

The group will include President John F. Galvin of Springfield, president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor, Boston's Walter Lawrence, the labor union legislative agent on Bacon, Bill, Charles T. Keating, of the international vice president of the electrical workers' union, and Harry Russell, director of the workers' educational bureau.

RECORD SCORED

In all there will be more than 12 in the non-partisan group of speakers opposing Bacon's health of his opposition to labor measures while a member of the state senate and president of that body.

At the New Deal Republican headquarters, operating at 22 Province street, under the direction of former Mayor William E. W. Curley, a continuous flow of pledge cards from Roosevelt Republicans supporting Bacon's Curley's candidacy for Governor, are coming in.

Among these cards from George W. Page of Salem, a young man of 25, who says that in voting for Curley in November he will be casting his first ballot for a Republican, is another card received from Harry L. Hanna of Somerville, who has been a Republican all his life.

C. Fred Hoffman of Westport writes that although he is a Republican for 45 years, he is going to "try and get 100 votes for Bacon and Jim in this year in Westport Republican town."

HELP OFFERED

Another letter from Charles F. Archambault, attorney, and a Republican candidate for mayor of New Bedford, states:

"For the first time in many years we have a President who is honestly trying to help the common people. As a northern mill city, we owe our duty to Roosevelt's adoption of child labor and giving northern mills their share of the work."

Headed by Bacon, speakers on the G. O. P. state ticket will attend rallies in Quincy, Weymouth and at Brockton tomorrow night. The group tonight will be in Fall River and New Bedford.

CHAPTER XXXII

Juliet opened her eyes. Neither she nor Von Guerdon knew how long they had been silent, for thought is timeless.

"Feel better?" he asked her, his voice careless.

"I rested," she said quietly, "but the sound of the sea is dreary, isn't it? And I'm cold."

He went back to the car and brought his light overcoat to put over her.

"Thank you. You know your ways so well."

"You are not. I don't know another man who would be so nice to me. I feel that you are just saying and you would understand."

"I think I would."

"I could tell you about a lover I had years ago. Her voice was dreary. But I won't. Let's get out of this. I forgot him and he returned, and he comes creeping into my heart but I am not happy. What am I going to do?"

LOVE FOR O'HARA

Von Guerdon's voice was toneless. "O'Hara?"

"Yes."

He buried the lighted stub of his cigarette in the sand. "Do you love him?"

"I'm afraid so. Tell me, what can I do?"

"You have taken a simple set of facts and twisted them out of all reason," she said, her tone bitter. "It's too silly to argue about, but I must certainly never ridiculous you."

"I'm not," he said, his eyes wide. "The business, I have contributed far more to it than I've had out of it. I really mean it. You're making a negotiating a contract that will bring me more money than you've ever had in your life."

DAUGHTERS OF VENUS -- By Robert Terry Shannon

Juliet opened her eyes. Neither she nor Von Guerdon knew how long they had been silent, for thought is timeless.

"Feel better?" he asked her, his voice careless.

"I rested," she said quietly, "but the sound of the sea is dreary, isn't it? And I'm cold."

He went back to the car and brought his light overcoat to put over her.

"Thank you. You know your ways so well."

"You are not. I don't know another man who would be so nice to me. I feel that you are just saying and you would understand."

"I think I would."

"I could tell you about a lover I had years ago. Her voice was dreary. But I won't. Let's get out of this. I forgot him and he returned, and he comes creeping into my heart but I am not happy. What am I going to do?"

"I think I would."

his face, came O'Hara himself.

"Katie looked eagerly at Juliet, failed to see anyone else in the room in that first instant. Her voice sprang out with a gay tiny vibration."

"Look, Miss Juliet—I didn't let him get away tonight at the downstairs door. I'm sure of it. I'm sure."

As she became conscious of Von Guerdon and Madame Hubert, Katie's mouth formed a small, red, surprised circle of lip rouge. "Oh—"

"What's the rush?"

O'Hara's broad-shouldered form advanced into the room and stopped awkwardly. One black lock of hair had fallen across his forehead; behind his flush was, somehow, a handsome expression. His eyes met no one directly.

"Hello," he voice blurred slightly. "I didn't expect—"

He paused, widened an eyebrow and an abstract desire to go away.

"I was Von Guerdon who acted swiftly to end the scene. One of his hands fell upon his employer's shoulder."

"Madame Hubert and I are just leaving," he said deviously. "Come along, Madame—O'Hara and I are taking you home. We can talk on the way. He shot a meaningful glance at Katie, and a disconcerting wink to O'Hara, as he firmly grasped the latter's arm."

"Katie's eyes flew wider. "Hey! What's the rush? Can't you just leave me alone?"

"Grab one of her arms," Von Guerdon commanded O'Hara.

"You've been here before?"

"Always."

"Sometimes I need to escape from life—it is a little pleasant," he said. "You find here what you need, rest—peace."

"You're kidding me, aren't you?" Juliet, lying straight and motionless on the blanket, seemed strangely calm in the dim light, looking larger than a child. O'Hara, beside her, lit a cigarette.

"That's a long way to find peace," she said softly, looking straight up to heaven.

"I thought a long time before answering."

"I won't go," she said, "I'll stay here. I'm a bigger girl than I thought. Von Guerdon, I'm not going to let you and me, and then have O'Hara come sneaking in later. Oh, I've known her kind before. They can't leave me alone. But she's not going to let O'Hara."

A burning sense of humiliation welled through Juliet.

"Please take her away," she said dejectedly.

A grating sound occurred in the door of the outside door and beyond it came a man, a woman, and a child. Juliet and Von Guerdon and Madame Hubert came to a dead stop.

The door opened and Katie Schmidt, bright as gilt, came in the room. Behind her, with his overcoat over his arm and one in his hand and a brisk flush on his face, came O'Hara himself.
